Trunk or Treat!

Kids and adults lined up for the chance to sit in the fire truck's front seat.

Our first-ever Trunk or Treat event was a great success. The parking lot was filled with cars that were decorated in all kinds of fun, colorful, and spooky ways! Kids flooded the event in creative costumes, carrying bags and buckets to fill with candy and goodies. The Henrico Fire Department made a special appearance, lighting up the faces of kids (and residents) of all ages! But the highlight for many was stopping by Pelican Joe's for one of their delicious donuts.

Dinner for Two

Jack and Regina Kelzer

While celebrating her own 43rd wedding anniversary, Life Enrichment Coordinator Michelle Odom found herself reflecting on the beauty of marriage—so much so that she decided to host a romantic event for our couples. The candlelit “dinner for two” allowed residents to spend time together reflecting on their past and present.

OMA

Opening Minds through Art—commonly known as “OMA”—has returned. OMA is an abstract, failure-free art program. Although originally designed for those with memory loss, our assisted living residents also take advantage of this creative opportunity! To learn more about this unique program and how you can get involved by donating materials or serving as an OMA volunteer, contact Director of Life Enrichment Katie Carter.

James sings to Ellen Emerson.

Sing to Me

They say for the best concert experience, get front-row seats. Luckily for us, we all had a front-row experience during a special performance by singer James Curry on our porch. Residents sang and danced along to his crowd-pleasing favorites!

The Goochland Goats

Scenic drive, anyone? While many of our scenic drives feature golden leaves, rolling hills, and stunning vistas, a recent trip to Goochland had a special surprise... goats! Van Driver Barry Tudor made this drive a bit different by stopping to see a neighbor who owns some very friendly goats. We aren't sure who enjoyed the impromptu visit more—our residents or the goats!

Judy Ressler and Barry Tudor hand out treats.
